

Changing world, changing workplace

May 16, 2022 4:45 PM SoPA News Staff
sopanews@tulane.edu

Proof that working Americans are thinking differently about jobs and careers is all around us. The pandemic arguably sped up changes that were already underway, making it necessary for higher education institutions to respond. Suri Duitch, dean of Tulane's School of Professional Advancement, discusses these changes, and the obligation of colleges and universities to prepare today's students for these quickly evolving workplace settings. Click the image below to hear the podcast.

