New partnership extends 20 percent tuition discount on Tulane SoPA degrees and certificates to all IALEIA members.

Tulane School of Professional Advancement (Tulane SoPA) announces an exciting new partnership with the International Association of Law Enforcement Intelligence Analysts (IALEIA) wherein members will now have exclusive access to discounted tuition rates on all Tulane SoPA undergraduate and graduate degree programs, as well as certificates.

This strategic partnership is designed to provide IALEIA members with flexible, career-relevant educational opportunities that align with their demanding schedules and professional goals. Tulane SoPA's online academic programs in fields such as homeland security, emergency management, cybersecurity, open-source intelligence, and other areas crucial to the evolving landscape of law enforcement and intelligence analysis, makes it ideal for law enforcement and intelligence professionals seeking to advance their education on their own time, from anywhere in the world.

"Many students in our Emergency and Security Studies programs have military and law enforcement backgrounds," said Michael Wallace, director of Emergency and Security Studies Programs for Tulane SoPA. "This partnership reflects Tulane SoPA's commitment to providing high-quality, accessible education to professionals who serve on the front lines of public safety and security."

Tulane SoPA's academic offerings are tailored to meet the unique needs of law enforcement and intelligence professionals. With a focus on practical applications and real-world scenarios, the courses are designed to equip students with skills and knowledge they can immediately apply in their careers.

Additionally, faculty are working professionals and experts in their respective fields. They bring a wealth of experience to the classroom, offering students valuable insights and mentorship from those who understand the challenges and opportunities within the law enforcement and intelligence community.
