The Tulane School of Professional Advancement (SoPA) has announced a new partnership with Campus, an innovative community college focused on accessible associate degree programs to establish a transfer pathway designed to help Campus graduates seamlessly continue their education at Tulane.

Under the agreement, students who complete an Associate of Arts in Business Administration or an Associate of Arts in Paralegal Studies at Campus may transfer up to 60 credits toward any bachelor's degree at Tulane School of Professional Advancement. This partnership enables students to maximize their prior coursework and move more efficiently toward degree completion.

Graduates of other associate degree programs at Campus may also transfer credits toward a Tulane SoPA degree. In these cases, coursework will be individually evaluated for transferability with up to 60 credit hours approved for transfer.

Built for working adults and students balancing multiple commitments, Tulane SoPA offers flexible programs aligned with today's workforce demands. This partnership underscores a shared mission between Tulane SoPA and Campus to increase access to education, support student mobility, and create clear pathways to career advancement.

“Our partnership with Tulane SoPA reflects what Campus is all about: removing barriers and expanding opportunity. By combining flexible, affordable access with Tulane's academic excellence, students can move forward with confidence, knowing their credits count and their progress leads somewhere meaningful,” said Scott Booth, head of university partnerships at Campus.

By simplifying the transfer process, the partnership opens new doors for students ready to take the next step in their academic and professional journeys.
